With a focus on the future, CASSIOM designs and sells exceptional innovative decorative items that have never been seen before.

These items interpret, explain and appropriate scientific exploration of the Cosmos and great discoveries.

Decor furniture to explore the outer space, Les Objets Célestes, dive into the heart of astronomy and design.

Useful, unusual, often exclusive collector's items, they can also be broken down into several versions that are more or less sophisticated in their design and materials. Made to order and in series, they are suited to all spaces.

They are also exceptional design decorative items that are decorative art items that are precious too all aesthetics.

Unique in its genre, CASSIOM collections bring together the astronomy buffs and those with a passion for decoration who collect signed items, which are testimony to our place in the infinite universe

Thanks to CASSIOM, astronomers, space designers, dreamers and aesthetes experience an unprecedented vision of the sky, an opening to life that is resolutely modern and innovative.

Erol

St Mandé-born in 1953, lives and works in Vendoeuvres, France

An engineering graduate from Arts et Métiers, Erol imagined a series of sculptures based on his mastery of digital technologies.

It is with computer tools that he expresses his universe more precisely.

A visionary and sometimes an activist, he questions us about our perception of the world. All his works have the same fixed idea: to show what makes the essence of things. Whether he simplifies his works by only keeping the fundamental lines or he pushes precision to the extreme, as in his particularly realistic representation of the planets and the moon, he does it to always show us the imprint of reality.

Luc Billières

Montauban-born in 1970, lives and works in Meauzac

The artist Luc Billières is developing a work focused on space and through it, the creation of life. He creates lunar soils, comets, planets, ... cosmic events through sculptures or paintings in relief. After having laid the foundations including gravity and magnetic fields, Luc Billières breaks down his work into three main axes: "craterization", "promises of life" and "memories of the Earth". With regard to scientific resonance, the artist focuses on intentionality: how and why matter acts and reacts and under which laws? By identifying selected moments, Luc Billières created an object, which, after ignoring scientific material, represents an intention touching on this scientific reality.

Sébastien Crêteur

Valenciennes-born in 1975, lives and works in Gourdon.

With a university education in plastic arts and after a few years working in architecture, Sébastien Crêteur returned to what has livened him up since childhood: time.

Passionate about astronomy and archaeology, disciplines with which he articulates his approach, he appropriates his own time to make a medium and an object.

His work is at the crossroads between the object, the universe, and the viewer of the cosmos.
